/PRNewswire/ -- Management consulting firm, Bywater Inc. has been awarded an important engagement by the New York Power Authority.

NYPA's mission is to play a leadership role in implementation of New York State's energy policy to create affordable and reliable energy as a cornerstone of its economic and industry change renaissance. This is key to retaining and creating jobs in New York State.

Some years ago the New York Power Authority decided to be in the progressive forefront of organizations who were developing a Key Performance Indicator system to help drive improvement effort on behalf of their stakeholders. Executives at NYPA now want to decide on what future direction to take their Balanced Scorecard -- as it is referred to internally. Several senior executives of Bywater will help assess the extent of measurement system development at NYPA, and help the senior management team to define their future strategy in this area. Achieving best practice and providing what is needed to drive future development in this Authority is the main goal.

"We have over 20 years of private and public sector experience assisting companies with measurement system development. Helping and observing efforts over such a long period gives us insight into what works and what doesn't," said George Russel, President of Bywater. "It has also allowed us to develop a Maturity Model that enterprises can use to gauge their own development and peg their own Vision for measurement system development."

Bywater's client base includes federal and local government, food and beverage, pharmaceutical, transportation, oil and gas, and many other manufacturing and service organizations.

Bywater is an international management firm providing strategic assistance in areas such as Enterprise Transformation, Process Improvement, Acquisition & Partnering Assistance, Private Equity Financing and Growth Strategy Execution. The firm has over 20 years experience in client-led, results-driven business improvement strategies.
